New community group springs up in Bryte, Broderick

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

It looks like the northern neighborhoods of West Sacramento have a new community group.

Sixteen residents of the Bryte and Broderick areas got together last week, and decided to form a non-profit association to champion their neighborhoods. One of the activists was Carol Klesow, a San Francisco native who is now a resident and enthusiastic proponent of Bryte (in the city's northwest). She's lived in Bryte since 2001.

"We have a great diversity of people here, because of immigrants," said Klesow. "We have Russian, Portuguese, Northern European and Mexican families, and it has a feeling of acceptance for people here. People here are very much open to 'live and let live.' Growing up in San Francisco, I appreciate that."

Klesow also said she loves the old trees, the modestlyproportioned homes and the community gardens. She said she - like some of her fellow residents - are afraid of "gentrification" in Bryte and Broderick.

"I think this is valuable real estate here. Unless we put forward the virtues, I think it's only too easy to tear down old houses because they're looking a little disheveled, rather than saying, 'we can refurbish this place,'" Klesow commented. She mentioned a nearby "high end" development called "The Rivers," which has sprung up on Broderick's riverfront.

"The Rivers could easily expand over to this neighborhood and it could easily bring the city a lot more income than our small houses on large lots," Klesow said. But the small houses are energy-efficient, she said, and the large lots allow people to grow some of their own food in gardens. Klesow is also a fan of community gardens, open to public use.

"One of my main focuses is wanting to see community gardens always stay here," she said. One garden on school district property at Riverbank has been removed. There remain community gardens near Westfield and Bryte elementary schools, and another community garden near the senior center on Cummins Way.

"The garden over here in Bryte is used mostly by Hmong and Laotian people," she said. "People coming from other countries recognize the importance of having access to food and providing food for their families."

Klesow, like some of the other activists in her group, are concerned that their part of the city is under an anti-gang injunction.

"The common theme among people in this community is that they think this is a great community," she said. "There's a gang injunction here and I think the people who live here don't think of this as a gang-infested place. There's a sense of safety at night. We would really like the people who run West Sacramento to see the gems that Bryte and Broderick are."

The City of West Sacramento has invited residents of these northern neighborhoods to attend a "visioning" process and talk about the region's future. Klesow said she is happy with some of what she has learned from city representatives.

"There's talk of major funding to help refurbish some of these homes," she said. "That's a great thing."

The city's "town hall" meeting on the future of Bryte and Broderick is scheduled for Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

Volunteers wanted

Help Fire Dept. respond to emergencies, disasters

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The West Sacramento Fire Department wants you.

The department is looking for a new Community Emergency Response Team (CERT). Volunteers will be trained, and then called upon to help out in the event of local catastrophes.

"They will help out in emergencies like fire and flood emergencies," said Division Chief Gary Fredericksen. "Maybe they would do traffic direction. Maybe, if we have to do a major evacuation, they will be asked to go house-to-house."

Fredericksen said that other cities, including Sacramento and Woodland, already have CERT programs. West Sacramento has applied for a $25,000 grant from U.S. Homeland Security to start its own CERT program.

"It costs about $13,000 for equipment and another $11- or $12,000 for training," he said. The volunteers are issued bright vests and helmets after training.

"It's open to all ages, but people who are retired are the ones who tend to get involved. If we can get 15 to 20 people to start, that would be terrific."

The team will have a trailer and will be mobile throughout the city. Following Hurricane Katrina, West Sacramentans are especially conscious of their exposure to possible flooding. A flood is one event in which the CERT personnel could help.

"First, we teach them how to take care of themselves and their families, and then we teach them how to help us," said Fredericksen. "In flood situations, we might use them to patrol the levees (looking for failure points)."

Fredericksen said CERT volunteers could have been useful during the major storm event in March, which resulted in a lot of localized flooding, downed trees and failed traffic signals.

"When we have a wind and flooding event like that, we have to use police officers on street corners to direct traffic. Maybe we can use CERT personnel for that kind of thing, and use emergency personnel for responding to emergencies."

CERT trainees will also be schooled in disaster medical operations, light search and rescue, disaster psychology, and responding to terrorism.

Anyone interested in more information may contact Captain Adrian Martinez at 617-4610. Training begins next spring.

Clampdown on owner of barge

The Coast Guard, state Department of Fish and Game and the West Sacramento Fire Department have started to work with the owner of a barge at the Port of Sacramento to properly dispose of hazardous materials found on the barge during a fire inspection. The barge had "numerous containers of hazardous materials," said a statement from the Fire Department. The barge is located on the north side of the port's turning basin, near Harbor Boulevard.

No challengers - yet - in school board race

Final date to file for November election is Friday, Aug. 8

Final date to file as a candidate for mayor, city council member or school board member in West Sacramento in November's election is this Friday.

As of Monday, no new challengers were in the race for any of three available seats as trustees of the Washington Unified School Board, reported the Yolo County Elections Office. All three incumbents up for election - Barry Kalar, Mary Leland and Dave Westin - have "pulled papers" to seek re-election.

Meanwhile, a new candidate, Robert Lund, has started paperwork for a campaign to become mayor. Other announced candidates for mayor are current mayor Christopher Cabaldon and city councilman Mark Johannessen.

Yolanda Villanueva has picked up nomination papers to run for city council, joining fellow newcomer Salina Valencia. Incumbents Oscar Villegas and Bill Kristoff intend to defend their seats.

FIRES

Three different brush fires broke out in a one-mile stretch of riverfront land over the weekend.

"These fires burned approximately three acres of riparian riverfront property in close proximity to known homeless camps," said a fire department press release.

Crews responded to the first fire at 8:17 p.m. on Saturday.

They responded to another grass and brush fire Sunday at 1:27 p.m. nearby, just north of the I Street Bridge.

And they received report of a new fire Sunday at 3:32 p.m. 300 yards away, north of the Broderick Boat ramp. Firefighters were on hand putting out the third fire for three hours.

While they worked, a two-gallon water container and an ice chest of drinks for the firefighters was stolen.

'Accident'

The Yolo County Sheriff/Coroner's office has released the results of its investigation into the death of a Woodland man who died after being restrained by police on May 28.

The investigation lists the cause of death of Ricardo Manuel Abrahams, 44, as "positional asphyxia," and said that the use of Tasers and other actions by police did not cause his death. The report adds that Abrahams suffered from mental illness including schizophrenia, as well as heart disease and obesity. The manner of death is listed as an "accident."

Abrahams was arrested, restrained and Tasered after a disturbance. He died shortly afterwards at Woodland Memorial Hospital.

CORRECTION

The News-Ledger last week stated that a telephone poll concerning a possible school bond measure was commissioned by Superintendent Steve Lawrence of the Washington Unified School District. That statement was incorrect.

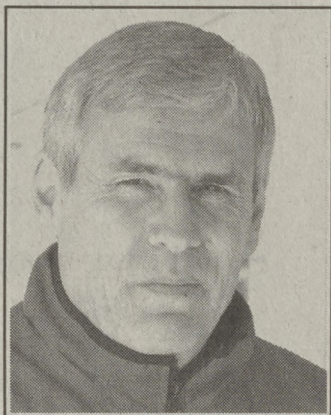

In fact, the poll was commissioned by an independent campaign committee after consultation with Lawrence. Monies from Washington Unified School District were not used for the phone poll.

The News-Ledger regrets the error.

Men & women don't laugh at the same things

"Dad, I think I've finally figured out why most men have such a warped sense of humor," proudly announced my daughter awhile back. "Warped?" I asked defensively. "Well, juvenile then." "I don't have a warped or juvenile sense of humor," I said with conviction. "Oh yes you do." "Oh no I don't." "You think the Three Stooges are funny, don't you?" "Of course I do." "And you and your brother almost fall out of your chairs laughing every time you watch them on television, don't you?" "We sure do. They're hilarious!" "I rest my case." "You don't like the Three Stooges?" I asked in amazement. "They're idiots." "But you have to admit, they're very funny idiots." "No they're not. They slap each other, make gross noises, have food fights, and poke each other in the eye. Now what in the world is funny about that?" "Is there a point to this?" I finally decided to ask. "Here," she said, handing me a section of the newspaper, "read the article at the top of page four."

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

"Which one?"
"The one that explains why men think burping, passing gas and mooning someone is funny."
As I began to read, I learned that the newspaper article my daughter wanted me to read was written by a woman named Usha Lee McFarling and was entitled "Scientists find where punch line hits brain." In it, Ms. McFarling wrote, "Amid all the marvelous things we humans can do with our big brains — multiply fractions, write sonnets, design Web pages — none is quite so mysterious as our ability to enjoy a good joke."
The article went on to say, "Studies of gender differences in humor show women are more likely to enjoy jokes that involve longer narratives, personal information and memories. They seem to be better in taking in linguistic information, making comparisons, solving problems, and connecting intellectual knowledge with their emotions, all of which are needed to appreciate good humor. Men, however, are more likely to enjoy humor scientists would term slapstick: The Three Stooges, men in drag, and bare butt jokes."

"What is a bare butt joke?" I asked my daughter.
"You know, gross stuff — bathroom humor."
"Oh," I said, slightly disappointed.
"So," explained my daughter, "that article says a woman's right frontal lobe — which is largely responsible for a well-developed sense of humor — simply works better in women than it does in men."
"Where does it say that men have lousy right frontal brain lobes?" I asked with concern, quickly glancing back down at the article.
"It just implies it."
"Oh."
"Have you read the last paragraph yet?"
"No."
"Go ahead," she encouraged me, "it pretty much says it all."
I returned my eyes to the newspaper article and discovered that Ms. McFarling concluded her little report with the words, "I would hate to say that male humor is the humor of the impaired or the infantile, but since science seems to indicate this is true, how can we argue against it?"
"You know what I think Ms. McFarling needs?" I asked my daughter.
"No. What?"
"A good pie in the face."

And here are a couple of humorous stories I think even Larry, Moe, and Curly would have appreciated:
A young man hired by a supermarket reported for his first day of work. The manager greeted him with a warm handshake and a smile, gave him a broom and said, "Here. Your first job will be to sweep out the store."

"What? But I'm a college graduate!" the young man replied indignantly.
"Oh, forgive me," said the store manager. "I'm sorry. I didn't realize that. Here, give me back the broom. I'll have to show you how."

George Phillips of Meridian, Mississippi was going to bed when his wife told him that he'd left the light on in the garden shed, which she could see from the bedroom window. George opened the back door to go turn off the light but quickly saw that there were people in the shed stealing things. He immediately phoned the police, who asked "Is someone actually in your house?"
"No," replied George, "they're in the garden shed."

The police said that all their patrols were busy and that he should simply lock his front and back doors and an officer would be along when available.

George hung up, counted to 60, and then phoned the police again. "Hello, I just called you a minute ago because there were people stealing things from my garden shed. Well, you don't have to worry about them anymore because I just shot them." Then he hung up the phone.

Within five minutes six police cars, a SWAT team, a helicopter, two fire trucks, a paramedic and an ambulance showed up at George Phillips' residence and caught the burglars red-handed.

One of the police officers said to George, "I thought you said that you'd shot them?"

George replied, "I thought you said there was nobody available."

Parvovirus found in local dogs

PLUS: what to do when you find someone's stray pet

The Yolo County Sheriff's Department, Animal Services Section, reports an increase in cases of animals with parvovirus and distemper in Yolo County. The majority of cases have been found in Woodland and West Sacramento. The shelter has had five cases of parvovirus within the last month, although pet owners are urged to be alert.

The parvovirus affects the intestinal tract and causes vomiting, diarrhea, and dehydration. It is an airborne virus obtained through contact with animals with the disease. The virus can also be obtained from the soil where a diseased animal may have been.

Distemper is also an airborne virus that affects dogs. There is no danger to other pets, or to humans, however it has been known to be carried by raccoons. It often begins with a cough or runny nose, resembling kennel cough.

Some minor cases of these diseases are able to be treated. In extreme cases the animal would need to be euthanized. These diseases are preventable if you have your pet vaccinated. The Yolo County Animal Shelter offers a vaccination clinic on the second, third, and fourth Saturday of each month. Please check the Yolo County Sheriff's Department website for times and fees.

Animal Services also advises that their night deposit boxes in the front of their shelter are closed and will remain closed due to California State legislation. It is illegal to leave an animal abandoned without care. At this time no one is on duty at the shelter during the overnight hours to receive the animal and to assist animals that are sick or injured which would require immediate attention.

If you find a stray animal after hours, you have a couple of options. If the animal is healthy, Animal Services request that you keep the animal overnight, and then bring it to the shelter during normal business hours. If you feel that you are unable to care for the animal, or if it is sick or diseased, you are requested to contact your local law enforcement office who will work with you to have the animal taken to the shelter. The Yolo County Animal Shelter is open Tuesday through Friday from 10:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.; then from 2:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. It is open on Saturdays from 10:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.;

then from 2:00 p.m. until 4:00 p.m. The shelter is closed on Sundays and Mondays. A Yolo County Animal Services Officer is on duty from eight in the morning until eight at night. After hours the shelter has an Animal Services Officer on call for emergency services.

Sheriff Prieto stated, "The shelter wants to find good homes for the animals which in turn bring joy to their owners. We're fortunate to have one of the few shelters in California that has a veterinary staff on the premises who check the health of each animal brought to the shelter, and treats those in need before they are eligible to be adopted."

For more information about the shelter, pet adoptions and vaccinations, visit the Yolo County Sheriff's website at www.yolocountysheriff.com then click on 'Animal Services'.

Yolo 'bioreactor' called a success

From the County of Yolo

Yolo County recently received a certificate of congratulations from the United States Environmental Protection Agency's National Center for Environmental Innovation. The recognition was for the completion of "Project eXcellence and Leadership (Project XL)" – the Yolo County Accelerated Anaerobic and Aerobic Composting (Bioreactor) Project.

Project XL started in 2000, and was a partnership between the U.S. EPA, the State of California and the Yolo County Department of Planning & Public Works in aiming for a higher level of environmental protection through the use of new bioreactor landfill technology. The bio-reactor process is a form of composting solid waste which accelerates the decomposition process by adding groundwater and recirculating the liquid that has passed through the material. This enhances the growth of bacteria and fungi which help break down solid waste. As a byproduct, methane gas is produced. The gas is then converted to energy and sold to the power grid.

In a letter to Yolo County, Elizabeth A. Shaw, U.S. EPA Director of the National Center of Environmental Innovation stated, "We are grateful for Yolo County's early leadership and interest in innovative practices."

Yolo County's project was commended by the U.S. EPA for success in:

- Managing landfilled solid waste for rapid waste decomposition;
- Maximizing landfill gas generation and capture; and
- Minimizing long-term environmental consequences of landfilled waste management

"The Yolo County Board of Supervisors has consistently supported landfill staff in their pursuit to move forward the county's bioreactor project," said John Bencomo, Yolo County Planning & Public Works Director. "There has been a recognized need for pushing the envelope in landfill technology and finding more effective and environmentally sound methods."

The XXIX Olympic Games opening ceremony will begin on Friday, August 8th in Beijing, China. The theme is "One World One Dream". The first modern Olympic Games started in 1896 in Athens, Greece and have been held every four years except during the World Wars. The Olympic Games were canceled after the 1936 games in Berlin and resumed in 1948 in England.

The upcoming games in Beijing will comprise of 302 events in 28 sports. So what is the reasoning behind the Olympic Games? The "Olympic Program" is the Program of sports, disciplines and events decided by the IOC for the Games of the Olympiad and the Olympic Winter Games. The Games of the Olympiad must contain at least fifteen Olympic sports.

Here's the following criteria listed by the IOC for the Games of the Olympiad. Those only sports/disciplines widely practiced by men in at least 75 countries and on four continents, and by women in at least 40 countries and on three continents.

Did you know the IOC is dropping Women's Softball? Do you think it's because the USA team (59-1) always wins the Gold Medal? The International Olympic Committee eliminated baseball and softball from the 2012 London Games. Both sports are lobbying for reinstatement in 2016, with a decision to be made in October 2009.

Keep your eye on Woodland's Jill Camarena who is competing in Beijing for Olympic Gold Medal in the Women's Shot Put?

NFL Note

Are you ready for some Football? The NFL season officially kickoff the 2008/09 season last Sunday in Canton, Ohio with the Redskins beating the Colts following the induction of a few Hall of Fame players.

The NFL will have a few games kicking off on Thursday night but the game to watch for local fans will on Friday night (7 p.m.) in Oakland where the 49ers and Raiders will showcase their new roster of players. The Raiders are favored by 3 points but don't get too excited because both teams will use players who won't be around their training camps in two weeks.

The Raiders shelled out tons of money to revamp their defense but they have their work cut out this season trying to assemble a productive offense. The Raiders young quarterback JaMarcus Russell will be in the backfield with Darren McFadden, their first round pick, but the big question marks will be at the wide receiver positions and the offensive line.

The Niners will begin their three way battle for the starting quarterback job with Alex Smith the front runner but don't count out Shaun Hill, who was outstanding in the 49ers final two games. Also the Niners have ex-UCD quarterback J.T. O'Sullivan competing for the starting QB job.

The Brett Favre drama continues to grab the sports headlines around the NFL especially after the NFL accepted his reinstatement papers were and he reported to the Packers training camp on Monday. The Packers offered the Hall of Famer a $25 million contract to stay retired and become their official football ambassador for life.

Stay tuned to ESPN for hourly updates regarding trade rumors as the world turns for Brett Favre in Green Bay. Rumor has the Packers trading Favre to the 49ers for Trent Dilfer and crate of lobsters. Not true, I just wanted to start my own rumor!

Kings Korner

Well, the Kings dumping Ron Artest isn't a rumor anymore! The Kings finally pulled the trigger and unloaded Ron Ron to the Houston Rockets for 35-year-old Bobby Jackson, Rockets first round pick Donte Greene, and the Rockets first round pick in the 2009 draft. The Kings also received $1 million in cash to round out the salary cap issues.

The Kings will probably come out this deal in good shape because they are essentially coming away with two first round draft picks for

Mr. Artest. The Kings tried to upload Kenny Thomas and his hefty contract but couldn't find anybody dumb enough to take Thomas off their roster.

Diamond Notes

The A's (53-58) are toast this season trailing the first place Angels by 16 ½ games while the Giants (47-64) fall 10 ½ games behind Arizona. Both teams will be dipping into their minor league systems earlier than the September 1st, when there allowed to increase their player rosters.

The Giants have already thrown in the towel this season calling up any player who has potential to play in the big leagues. The Giants have invited Barry Bonds to Saturday's game against the Dodgers at AT & T Park for a special day honoring the all-time home run king for his years of service. Needless to say, Bonds is not a happy camper and hasn't, as of Monday, confirmed his attendance to his own party.

The A's misfortune continues with Eric Chavez done for the season with right shoulder surgery but importantly the A's just haven't been the same team since the All-Star break.

The A's starting pitching is 1-10 with a 6.86 ERA in 16 games and during their current seven-game losing streak, the A's offense has mustard up only 13 runs.

The A's will be on the road this week to play in Toronto and Detroit while the G-Men hosts Atlanta before the Dodgers arrive for a weekend series.

The River Cats (66-55) increase their lead to 5 ½ games over Las Vegas in the Pacific South Division with only 27 games remaining in the season. The Cats will be in Las Vegas over the weekend before they return to the friendly confines of Raley Field for eight games beginning August 12th.

Between the Ropes

Tony "The Tiger" Lopez is bringing boxing back to Raley Field on Friday, August 8th (7 p.m.) featuring four amateur bouts and five action packed pro fights. The family friendly ticket prices start at $10 and

Little League

The West Sacramento Little League will offer a "fall" league. Registration is $50, and play is open to those age 8-14 by April 30, 2009 who live within the league's boundaries. 'Big brother' on the net; mayor's race

Life, and the Internet, seem to be getting a little bit eerie these days.

One of the more recent developments on the Internet is a way to look at different places – including, probably, your home – in a street-level, panoramic image. You can go to maps.google.com, and type in an address. Then you can click on the photo, and use your computer mouse to look to the right or left. You can probably see if your garage door was up when the photo was taken, and how green was your lawn. You may also catch a frozen random moment such as a child playing, or a dog squatting.

Future “archaeologists” are going to have a field day with some of these images.

The photos were taken by special cars roaming the neighborhoods with camera equipment. Not every street and neighborhood have been captured, but the coverage in West Sacramento seems to be fairly complete.

This mayor's race involving Christopher Cabaldon and Mark Johannessen (and possibly a challenger or two) is going to be interesting. It's the first time a truly competitive candidate will take on Cabaldon. Johannessen has had the backing of labor groups in the past, and that is a constituency that has sometimes been hostile to Cabaldon. As a city council incumbent, Johannessen will be taken seriously by other potential contributors, and will probably mount a formidable campaign.

Johannessen will also benefit from the anti-Cabaldon voters. There is a backlash in West Sacramento against Cabaldon. The dynamics of this backlash are fascinating. Some of it seems to be due to his status as an “outsider” – a man who didn't move to West Sacramento until his adult years. Some of it is due to his perceived aloofness – Cabaldon doesn't have the ability to be at ease with strangers the way

(for example) Councilman Bill Kristoff or Supervisor Mike McGowan can be.

Some of the backlash is anti-intellectual; Cabaldon is a classic “policy wonk” capable of complex ideas and complex sentences. He's a policy person more than a people person.

Some of the hostility is because Cabaldon is gay. (Some of those who claim their anathema to Cabaldon has nothing to do with his sexuality are deceiving themselves.)

Some of it is because of questionable campaign tactics used by Cabaldon in his city elections or in his recent run for state assembly. “Fair play” has not been his first priority.

Some of it is due to a feeling that Cabaldon is too big for his britches. Cabaldon's own campaign material gives him pretty much all the credit for some of this city's biggest accomplishments. While he's been important, those claims are a stretch. And the media and regional leaders have continually singled Cabaldon out as a shining star. That causes some jealousy back home.

And some of the backlash is a reaction to Cabaldon's actual policy decisions. This is the most important place to find reasons to oppose Cabaldon, but it's tricky to find. Cabaldon seems to be blamed for things that couldn't have happened without full city council support – yet the rest of the council often gets a “pass.” Cabaldon also gets blamed for some of the things that resulted from decisions of prior city councils – things that were decided before he was elected to office.

Wherever the backlash comes from, it's a fact of life now in West Sacramento. And the backlash will help equalize the race between the savvy incumbent and the challenger Johannessen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Restore public safety

Whether California faces rosy or gloomy times, we must always make public safety the number one priority. If our streets, parks and schools aren't safe from gang violence and other crimes, then nothing else really matters.

Democratic members of the Budget Conference Committee have approved deep cuts to public safety programs including the Citizens Option for Public Safety (COPS), which provides for front-line law enforcement, and the Juvenile Justice Crime Prevention Act (JJCPA) while altogether eliminating several vital programs such as California's Methamphetamine Interdiction Program (CALMMET) and the Small and Rural County Sheriffs Grant Program. Combined with a proposed corrections package that puts some offenders back out on the streets without supervision, these cuts will significantly exacerbate the ability of law enforcement to provide essential public safety services. These programs are critical in preventing our most at-risk youths from joining gangs, getting involved in drugs, and entering a lifetime of crime.

Therefore, we must secure public safety funding so we can work locally to protect the streets of our communities and not rely on Sacramento as they continue to demonstrate a lack of regard for our needs as it relates to your safety. That's why I support Proposition 6 - the Safe Neighborhoods Act, which protects and secures funding for public safety in any type of budget environment.

In addition to protecting important gang prevention and intervention funding, this initiative prohibits bail to illegal aliens who are charged with violent or gang crimes; it creates tougher punishment for gang crimes, drive-by shootings, methamphetamine distribution and victim intimidation; it helps victims who have been intimidated by gang criminals and it funds victim-witness protection programs in our communities.

To learn more about Proposition 6 – the Safe Neighborhoods Act, please visit the web site at:

www.SafeNeighborhoodsAct.com. Click on “Join the Fight” and “Contributions” to help make this initiative become law. All of us deserve to feel secure in our homes and communities and to know that law enforcement has the resources it needs to keep us safe.

÷		x		x
	x		÷		17

"The Dark Knight"

Running time: 152 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

I've watched "The Dark Knight" three times, and I'm still not sure how I feel about it. It's either the best movie of the year, or a muddled mess that's overshadowed by a bravura performance by Heath Ledger.

Let's face it, the main reason many of us are seeing "Dark Knight" is to watch Ledger chew up the scenery as the Joker. And Boy Howdy does he.

Ledger has taken an iconic character and made it his own. No one can play The Clown Prince of Crime ever again without being compared to Ledger. The dude out-Jokered Nicholson, for cryin' out loud.

That's no small achievement, and he definitely deserves an Oscar for this performance. Not since Anthony Hopkins' portrayal of Hannibal Lecter have I been so unsettled by an actor's characterization.

The same can't be said for Christian Bale, who is the worst Batman since Val Kilmer uttered the infamous "chicks dig the car" line in "Batman Forever." Bale disappears in the suit: no character, no emotion and even worse is that raspy voice he adopts that sounds more like Homer Simpson doing his Horse Whisperer impression than a menacing and mysterious Dark Avenger of the Night.

Oldman) and Batman are trying to bring down the various mob families who have Gotham City in their grip. The two decide to back new district attorney Harvey Dent (Aaron Eckhart), dubbed Gotham's White Knight. Their plans to clean up the streets, however, are derailed by the appearance of the Joker, who begins to play deadly games with the mob, the police and Batman.

By playing one side against the other two, the Joker hopes to bring down the status quo in order to show the world what a flimsy artifice Civilization is. He is, as Bruce Wayne's butler (Michael Caine) describes, one of those men who just wants to watch the world burn.

"The Dark Knight" has many brilliant scenes, but also a few (like an entire sequence involving a Hong Kong gangster) that are a complete waste of time. Plotwise, we see minor characters show up for no logical reason except to introduce a plot device to advance the story, and then disappear again. There is quite a bit of trite, hackneyed dialogue (Dent actually utters the groan-inducing line, "It's always darkest before the dawn. And the dawn is coming.") ... And yet, I want to see this movie again.

Q. I keep hearing that William Petersen is leaving "CSI." Is this true? — Roland G. in Oregon

A. William Petersen, an original cast member who played Gil Grissom for nine seasons, is indeed leaving "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" in the middle of the upcoming 10th season — 10 episodes into the season, to be exact. Don't get too sad, however, as he has agreed to return for occasional guest appearances and will remain one of the show's executive producers.

If there is any good news in his leaving, it's that a number of familiar characters will return in the episodes building up to his character's departure, including former colleague and flame Sara Sidle, played by Jorja Fox, as well as the Miniature Killer and sexy Lady Heather. As of this writing, talk has been that Laurence Fishburne and John Malkovich have been considered as replacements for William in the upcoming season.

Q. I heard that Jennifer Garner and Ben Affleck are close to divorce. Please tell me it isn't true — they are such a cute couple, and their daughter, Violet, is simply adorable. — Theresa C., via e-mail

A. All signs point to "still together." Their rep has repeatedly denied that the couple is on the verge of a break-up, and Victor Garber, Jen's former "Alias" co-star and good friend, confirmed this past month that Ben and Jen are expecting their second baby this winter.

Q. I just started watching "The Sopranos" and would like to know more about the actor who plays Furio. Has he been in other movies or television shows? — Theresa G., Englewood, Fla.

A. Federico Castelluccio — who he played Tony Soprano's right-hand man, Furio Giunta, on the hit mafia series from 2000-2006 — got his acting start on the now-defunct soap opera "Another World." But it was "The Sopranos" that gave Federico his big break. Since leaving the HBO series, he has co-starred many movies, including "A Guide to Recognizing Your Saints" with Robert Downey Jr., "El Cantante" with Marc Anthony and Jennifer Lopez. Look for him in the upcoming film "The Pink Panther 2" and "Thunder Doyle," which will reunite Federico with former "Sopranos" castmate Vincent Pastore, who played "Big Pussy."

William Petersen

However, Federico's first passion is painting, and he was one of the master painters involved with re-creating many museum Impressionist masterpieces for the 1999 Pierce Brosnan movie "The Thomas Crown Affair."

Q. I missed the last show of The CW's "Farmer Wants a Wife." Who did Matt choose? — Ruth M., Fort Worth, Texas

A. Matt Neustadt, the aforementioned farmer from the title of the matchmaking reality show, is a 29-year-old from West Alton, Mo. In the final episode, he chose Brooke Ward, the 23-year-old marketing representative from Dallas, over finalist Christa Ackerman, the 21-year-old cocktail waitress from New York City.

Austenland
by Shannon Hale
(Bloomsbury USA, $12.99)
Reviewed by Eulish Waddell

Jane has decided to break up with Mr. Darcy. She has yet to meet a real-life man who can compare to the fictional romantic idol, hero of Jane Austen's classic "Pride and Prejudice." Her constant rewatchings of the miniseries have devolved into an addiction so embarrassing to Jane that she keeps the discs hidden in a potted plant. So when a surprise inheritance leaves her an Austen fan's dream vacation — an all-expenses-paid stay at a resort where guests live like characters from the books — she is determined to make it her final fling before giving up her obsession for good.

At first, Jane has trouble immersing herself in the bygone world of Pemberley Park, articulating her (and the reader's) doubts that such an experience could be genuine. But since her attempts to inject some reality into the proceedings keep getting botched, Jane finally decides to just go with it and enjoy the experiment. She finds that it's fun to swan about all day in gauzy gowns and corsets, to spend bright, lazy hours sipping tea and napping in the afternoon. Freshly inspired, she even begins painting again for the first time in years.

But at the same time, "life" at Pemberley is surprisingly dull, and every little bit of diversion is a new opportunity to indulge her newly relaxed, "on holiday" personality and flirt as wholeheartedly as possible. Since the men around her are hired to "fall in love" with her, she doesn't expect anything to come of it. But Jane just might have met her Mr. Darcy after all — just not in the way she imagined. "Austenland" is a lot of fun, fizzy with romantic wish-fulfillment and yet maintaining a clear-eyed sensibleness that keeps it from feeling contrived and goofy.

The diet starts in two days and you have a private jet at your disposal. Where do you travel tomorrow, and what do you eat for the last big splurge?

"I go to Chicago. I eat deep-dish pizza from Gino's loaded with sausage, pepperoni, green pepper, green olives, mushrooms, onions and anchovies. That's breakfast! For lunch, it's off to Portillo's for a combo sandwich, which is half Italian sausage and half Italian beef. After that you gotta lay down for a couple of hours. Dinner is a rib-eye at the finest steakhouse in Chicago, Gene & Georgetti's. If I am still conscious after that, I will head over to Second City to do the Improv set at 11 p.m. and cap off the night with a hot Mrs. Field's Double Chocolate Nut Chip cookie on Division Street at 2 a.m."

Have you ever NOT left a tip due to poor service?
"No, once the service was so awful I left a penny, heads down and wrote on the bill, 'Get a New Job!' The service was slow, surly and snotty. I haven't eaten at my Mom's house since."

For fried okra: Mix eggs and water in bowl. Dip okra in flour, then eggs, then corn flour. Deep-fry at 350 F for 5 minutes.

In 2-gallon saucepot add fish stock with garlic, bay leaf and thyme and bring to a boil. Add roux and allow to thicken. Reduce heat and slow to a simmer. Add dissolved fillet powder and simmer for 1 1/2 hours, skimming frequently. In a separate saucepot, add salad oil. Sauté, garnish at medium heat until tender. Add seafood. Cook another 10 minutes. Be cautious not to overcook. Add seafood and garnish to gumbo base. Simmer another 10 minutes. Add salt, pepper and cayenne to taste. Serve in bowls with three or four pieces of fried okra on top. Serves 12.

Mark's Wisecrack:

On learning about gumbo's main ingredient, roux, from a chef, Randy. Randy: The main raw ingredient that goes in all gumbo is the roux. Mark: Like Rue McClanahan from "The Golden Girls"?
